

Let's Roll Forums > The Last American Forum > Government, Media & Corporate Hoaxes > The Boston Marathon Bombing Hoax

The Alleged Medical Witnesses

Register

Blogs

Arcade

Community

Today's Posts

Search

User Name

User Name

Remember Me?

Password

Log in

Post Reply

Page 8 of 19 << First < 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 18 > Last >>

View First Unread

SHARE

Thread Tools

26 May 2013, 20:52 PM

#71

joanneatom

Free Mind

Never trust an atom.

They make up everything.

Join Date: 6 Dec 2012

Location: UK

Posts: 1,089

Threads: 10

Thanked 2,361 Times in 840 Posts

Re: The Alleged Medical Witnesses

This picture was clearly taken inside the medical tent, prior to the 'bomb blasts'. Right at the apex of the roof a string of powerful lights can be seen, which also run the entire length of the tent itself.

Source: www.googleimages.com

There are many obvious reasons for the lights being their, but I would like to highlight the most important one, imo.

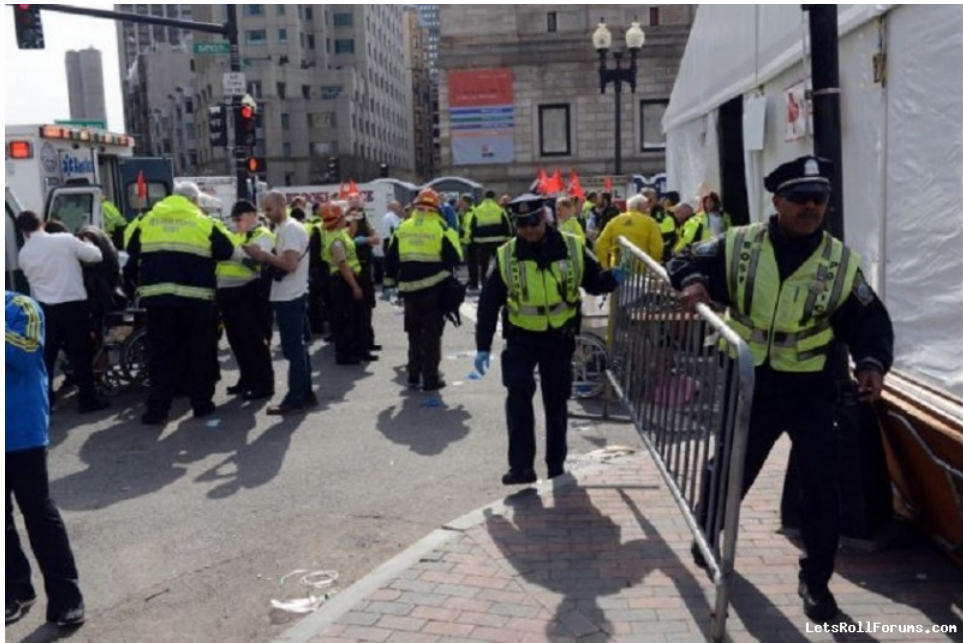

Patients cannot be treated in the dark.

Even if it was a glorious day outside, light levels in the tent would not be high enough to provide proper medical care. Medical personnel would always require light levels to be at the optimum level for the circumstances, as this would reduce the chances of 'missing something'. It also assists in the setting up of drips with catheters/cleaning dirty wounds/keeping records of treatment etc, etc. Here are some images allegedly taken whilst medics were inside the tent treating patients with severed arteries/blown off legs/full body shrapnel wounds and horrific burns. In every picture the inside of the tent is in complete darkness. Were the medics bats in a former life? There are many more, so these are just a sample.

1 of 8

Source: www.infoimages.co.uk

Source: www.bostonglobe.com

Source: www.googleimages.com

Source: www.flickr.com

Source: www.bostonglobe.com

Why are none of the lights on? Has the city of Boston just declared an outright ban on 'carrots of mass destruction'? Every medic in the tent must of been out panic-buying root vegetables in the last week in order to see in the dark like that. The last one:

Source: www.infoimages.co.uk

'Ladies and gentlemen, due to circumstances beyond our control, we are not able to provide our usual medical service for anyone running the marathon today. There has been a terrorist attack - please keep the area clear. Any individuals bleeding to death must form an orderly queue around the block to access medical treatment inside the tent. Also, please note that all our medical personnel work best in total darkness. The darker the better. Therefore, and for your own safety, light levels are kept at the equivalent of those experienced whilst trying to escape a super-massive black hole.

Or Nelly the Elephant's asshole.

 Quote

#72

#73

#74

#75

5 of 8

Location: UK
Posts: 1,089
Threads: 10
Thanked 2,361 Times in 840 Posts

..Never trust an atom...they make up everything...

Quote

27 May 2013 , 10:15 AM
QuidSapio
Thinker
Join Date: 19 Apr 2013
Posts: 219
Threads: 2
Thanked 769 Times in 194 Posts

Re: The Alleged Medical Witnesses

Yes. And wearing some kind of flak jacket?

Quote

27 May 2013 , 10:15 AM
pinewood
Thinker
Join Date: 9 May 2013
Posts: 112
Threads: 1
Thanked 284 Times in 96 Posts

Re: The Alleged Medical Witnesses

Quote:

Originally Posted by joanneatom
You cannot treat patients in the dark, so why bother to turn the off in the first place? Unless of course, you weren't really treating anybody, and you didn't want the odd passing civilian to get a glance at what was really going on inside.

Some people has pointed out that there was no reason to treat the injured in the tents. The only thing the medical staff could possible do was to stop the bleeding, then quickly put the injured in an ambulance and send the injured as fast as possible to hospitals. Real hospitals have much better equipment than those tents.

I think a Boston spokesperson claimed that all injured were at hospitals within 20 minutes after the explosions. But in the darkness of the medical tents, you can hide amputee actors, "improve" their injuries, sort the fake ones from possible real injuries, direct them to the "right" hospital/doctor, etc.

You can even add actors, like Haslet-Davis and Abbott, who probably never were at any of the sites. Then send these actors to the hospitals, and someone may take photos as the actors leave the medical tents or photos as they arrive at the hospital, to make the story more likely.

Quote

The Following 3 Users Say Thank You to pinewood For This Useful Post:

goodomens97, joanneatom, Paula

27 May 2013 , 10:23 AM
QuidSapio
Thinker
Join Date: 19 Apr 2013
Posts: 219
Threads: 2
Thanked 769 Times in 194 Posts

Re: The Alleged Medical Witnesses

Quote:

Originally Posted by pinewood
Some people has pointed out that there was no reason to treat the injured in the tents. The only thing the medical staff could possible do was to stop the bleeding, then quickly put the injured in an ambulance and send the injured as fast as possible to hospitals. Real hospitals have much better equipment than those tents.

I think a Boston spokesperson claimed that all injured were at hospitals within 20 minutes after the explosions. But in the darkness of the medical tents, you can hide amputee actors, "improve" their injuries, sort the fake ones from possible real injuries, send them to the "right" hospital/doctor, etc.

You can even add actors, like Haslet-Davis and Abbott, who probably never were at any of the sites. Then send these actors to the hospitals, and someone may take photos as the actors leave the medical tents or photos as they arrive at the hospital, to make the story more likely.

Absolutely. Moving the major trauma victims to the tent is completely counter usual practice and could only put lives at risk. The ambulances should have been brought as close in as the other emergency vehides and the victims triaged on scene so the most severely injured (Jeff, Patrick, Krystle), could be moved to hospital as fast as humanly possible.

The only reason I can think of for doing things the way they did that day would be to keep fake victims from interfacing with real EMTs.

I know I keep saying it, but to me this is one of the greatest pieces of proof that this was a fake event.

Quote

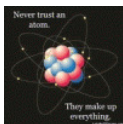

The Following 2 Users Say Thank You to QuidSapio For This Useful Post:

goodomens97, joanneatom

27 May 2013 , 12:11 PM

joanneatom

Free Mind

Join Date: 6 Dec 2012

Location: UK

Posts: 1,089

Threads: 10

Thanked 2,361 Times in 840 Posts

Re: The Alleged Medical Witnesses

Quote:

Originally Posted by QuidSapio

Absolutely. Moving the major trauma victims to the tent is completely counter usual practice and could only put lives at risk. The ambulances should have been brought as close in as the other emergency vehicles and the victims triaged on scene so the most severely injured (Jeff, Patrick, Krystle), could be moved to hospital as fast as humanly possible.

The only reason I can think of for doing things the way they did that day would be to keep fake victims from interfacing with real EMTs.

I know I keep saying it, but to me this is one of the greatest pieces of proof that this was a fake event.

You keep saying it for a damn good reason, imo. All the evidence for it is in this thread. There were all manner of photographers swarming around the outside also - plenty of opportunity to get the money shots - the 'bloody wheelchair' parked right outside springs to mind. We saw no evidence of blood on the wheelchairs of the 'amputees' in any of the other pics, yet low and behold there was one parked right outside for all to see. Not allowed too close though - must stay back and let the responders do their job.

I think your theory is correct re. the tent Quidsaipo, and lot's of contributors have noted it also.

..Never trust an atom...they make up everything....

The Following 2 Users Say Thank You to joanneatom For This Useful Post:

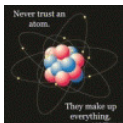

goodomens97, QuidSapio

28 May 2013 , 11:35 AM

#80

joanneatom

Free Mind

Join Date: 6 Dec 2012

Location: UK

Posts: 1,089

Threads: 10

Thanked 2,361 Times in 840 Posts

Re: The Alleged Medical Witnesses

These men have been posted on by various contributors in other threads. They were participants in the marathon and ran to offer assistance to the 'wounded', drawing on their own past experiences to assist in a manner no one else could. Although not strictly medical witnesses, their account of what occurred in Boston does relate to all things 'medical'.

From an article :

Quote:

By Sgt. Daniel A. Carter
USASOC Public Affairs

FORT BRAGG, N.C. (USASOC News Service, April 30, 2013) – The instincts of an American Soldier took over when three United States Special Operations Soldiers rendered emergency first aid to those who had fallen victim to the bombings at The Boston Marathon on April 15, 2013.

"I was recovering at the water point when the first bomb went off approximately 50 meters away," said Sgt. 1st Class Chris Spielhagen, a team sergeant in the Group Support Battalion of the Ft. Carson-based 10th Special Forces Group (Airborne). "At first it sounded like a celebratory cannon had been fired off, which I thought was rather odd." After turning towards the blast, his training as a Special Forces demolition engineer instantly told him that a bomb had just detonated. "The sound of the blast reminded me exactly of the IED's that I experienced during my five combat deployments to Iraq," said Lt. Col. David P. Diamond, United States Special Operations Command legislative affairs officer.

As Spielhagen moved toward the blast site, so did Diamond. Diamond and Spielhagen met heavy resistance from the volunteer force that was trying to keep the other runners out of harm's way. "I had to physically push my way through these volunteers, as I was determined to provide any leadership and medical assistance as I could," said Diamond.

Shortly after the first bomb had exploded, a second separate explosion echoed the first. Cpl. Paul Cusack, forward observer in 2nd Battalion, 75th Ranger Regiment at Joint Base Lewis-McChord, Wash., arrived at the second explosion site to find multiple people lying in the street and on the sidewalk. Cusack's Army training immediately kicked in and he assessed the scene and began looking for people he could help. He moved quickly from one victim to the next, providing aid where it was needed. Once Cusack had helped as many of the victims as he could, he continued to provide assistance to the Boston Police.

After the explosions, Diamond began to re-organize the medical personnel and volunteers in the area of the first explosion in order to help all of the victims who needed help. Diamond had advised the group of emergency responders to distribute their medical supplies and treat those who desperately needed them, as the supplies were limited. Once the supplies were distributed, Diamond entered a sports store to find more medical supplies. "I distributed these materials to as many responders as I could before exhausting my supplies," said Diamond, as he moved off to continue to render emergency aid to 10 more victims.

Once emergency first aid had been rendered to as many people as it could, Diamond, Spielhagen, and Cusack took a step back to assess the situation. "At this point the area started to change over into an investigation scene," said Cusack, "I stayed for another few minutes to see if there was anything else I could do, but it was over." Once they had realized that there was nothing more for them to do, as all the victims had been cared for, they immediately left to find their families who were also at the event.

"Completely exhausted and covered in blood, I departed Boylsten Street in the direction requested by Boston Police," said Diamond, "My next task was to find my family." The Soldiers' families had been near the bombing sites at the time of the explosions, although close by, all of their family members left the scene without injury.

"While expected in combat, these men brought not only their experiences but clearly their courage as well to aid those injured during this terrible event," said Lt. Gen. Charles T. Cleveland, commander, U.S. Army Special Operations Command. The three Soldiers are being considered for Army and civilian awards for their actions.

Source: <http://www.soc.mil/UNS/Releases/2013...130430-01.html>

There are no words.

Jeez - if it weren't for these guys, I'm sure many more legs would of simply fallen off. Arms too. They met heavy resistance, but battled through and took charge of the entire scene, ordering medical personnel and first responders to divvy up the meager supplies on the basis of need. They would never of worked out that little conundrum on their own now, would they? They only departed to look for their love ones when the scene had morphed into the 'investigation scene'.....

Seriously, this is the most ludicrous account I have heard so far. It does not tally with anything we have read or seen at all. It is pure fantasy, imo. It is such a shame - military personnel should be applauded for all that they do for their home nations - there is no need to talk up their actions in any given situation. They are respected by the majority of the public anyway. All the author has succeeded in doing by writing this article is to make the Boston 'blasts' even more unbelievable, and so make a mockery of the military to boot. It sounds like a badly scripted episode of 'MASH' on home soil.

..Never trust an atom...they make up everything....

The Following 2 Users Say Thank You to joanneatom For This Useful Post:

goodomens97, pinewood

Page 8 of 19 « First < 3 4 5 6 7 8 9 10 11 12 13 18 > Last »

Let's Roll Forums > The Last American Forum > Government, Media & Corporate Hoaxes > The Boston Marathon Bombing Hoax

« Previous Thread | Next Thread »

Currently Active Users Viewing This Thread: 2 (0 members and 2 guests)

Posting Rules

You may not post new threads
You may not post replies
You may not post attachments
You may not edit your posts

BB code is On Smilies are On
[IMG] code is On
HTML code is Off

Forum Rules

Forum Jump

The Boston Marathon Bombing Hoax

Go

Sponsored links

All times are GMT -5. The time now is 21:18 PM.

-- Default Style (90%)

The Lets Roll Forums - Top

Powered by vBulletin® Version 3.8.6
Copyright ©2000 - 2013, Jelsoft Enterprises Ltd.
Ad Management by RedTyger